News

I know everyone is waiting anxiously for the roof top to open. Trust me... we are too! There has been some more progress. The back stairs have been fixed so they aren't right next to the door anymore and have been filled with cement. Declan has been up there doing some work on the bar. The floors are in and close to done. The railings are there and mostly secured. Although we do not have a set date for the grand opening yet, it is getting closer by the day. I have posted the most recent pictures of the construction to the gallery on our website so you can check out the latest progress and I will be getting back to you later in the month (hopefully soon) about a Grand Opening date.

And now because I am sure you guys are tired of listening to me talk about the roof top and how it will be open some day, I have recruited a former newsletter contributor to entertain you with his interesting style of writing this month. So back by popular (and paternal) demand, read on to see what Chef Jeff has pulled out of his um archives (not sure archives is the right word here) for your enjoyment this month.

Letters from the Chef

"Maloneys has been Roofied"

by Chef Jeff

Yowsers. Well maybe not severely drugged into taking the walk of shame, yet somehow "convinced" to create an extraordinary venue for the mostly parched patron....hey! That's you! You did it! Some could call it another patio or perhaps you might want to call it a veranda (take it easy Jala), but most of you would prefer 30 feet up in heaven. To really focus on why...we as humans...are obsessed with roofs, I dove deep inside all of my encyclopedia britannicas and realized humans do not prefer to be wet while sleeping. Astounding. I also realized no one really knows who invented the first roof. Of course we could say the Chinese, but we know that's not true because then it would be called a loof. Haha. Im hilarious. You probably have to go back all the way to the caveman days to know who came up with the roof. In fact, the caveman who built the first roof is known by his peers as the "saber-tooth's pajamas". The Romans were the first to popularize it cause they didn't want the gods to watch them from above and see them do it grecco roman style. Then we came along and made a huge boob AKA a Bobbsey Twin for our capitol building and only then did we realize how important our roof is. Well Maloneys couldn't agree more. Inside, outside, tvs, beers, shots, Wentas, nachos, malubans and orange bombs. If only Mr. Cro-Magnon man could see what they can do with a roof then maybe no one would want to go "clubbing" anymore.

UFC

UFC 177 features a Bantamweight Championship bout between current champion TJ Dillashaw and former Champion Renan Barao. The event co-features a Flyweight title bout between champion Demetrious Johnson and challenger Chris Cariaso. The main fight card will start at 9pm however, we will be showing the preliminaries starting at 7pm and will take reservations for the night up until that time if you are interested in requesting a table. Our famous pork chop and mac & cheese dinner will be on special for 7.95 after 5pm. In addition, small pizzas are 10% off and large pizzas are 20% off. Buckets of beer are only $15 for any 5 bottles and Tiramisu shots will be $4 all night.
